

Join the African-American Genealogical Interest Group at the Washington DC Family History Center*

Monday mornings from 9:30AM - 1:00PM - Access microfilmed family history records, family history computer resources, and internet genealogical websites; record personal or second party histories; find books on church records, census, military, property and maps/atlas; and enhance your research techniques while expanding your network.

- Work with other genealogical researchers
- Give/receive support and advice
- Learn different research strategies

Monday afternoons from 1:00PM - 4:30PM - Let us help you to open the doors to specific areas of genealogical interest and interact with researchers in a variety of fields that include:

- Valuing Oral History
- Documenting/preserving Family History
- Finding Elusive Kinfolks - Genealogy Brick Walls
- Organizing Family Reunions
- Uncovering Family Military History
- Using DNA as a Genealogical Tool to Connect with Relatives

Each Monday, we share family stories/ ancestral discoveries and roadblocks; discuss the rewards/difficulties associated with finding slave ancestors, free persons of color & former slave owners; reveal resources available on-line and throughout the Washington, DC Metro area; talk about local/county research/records all over the United States; or chat about other historical/genealogical groups.
